$300 MILLION FIRE HITS PENTAGON

Church Begins Construction

Work on the First Methodist Church sanctuary has started. The $250,000 project is the second phase of a huge building program instituted by the church several years ago.

The first phase was the construction of an educational building which has been in use now for some time. This building is 12,000 sq. ft.

The new church building will be of late colonial church architecture and will seat approximately 1,200 persons.

A full size basement under the sanctuary will also afford additional space for Sunday School classes.

The new sanctuary will be connected with the educational building and the front of the educational building will be changed to have a portico with columns to fit in with the architecture of the sanctuary.

James Buey is the contractor for the program and he said that concrete will be poured within the next few days on the foundation.

The beginning of the construction of the new sanctuary will be marked in the morning service with appropriate hymns, scriptures and the sermon by the pastor, Rev. Mishecke, "Christ the Foundation."

Expect New Death Record

United Press International

The vanguard of an estimated 45 million cars carrying holiday-bent vacationists took to the nation's highways today for the Fourth of July weekend.

State and local police, warned by the National Safety Council that motorists may set a new death record of 350 for a two-day Independence Day weekend, mobilized to crack down on speedy, careless driving.

The Safety Council predicted that 45 million cars would take to the highways and travel nine billion miles during the weekend.

If the travel is as heavy as expected, it said, the traffic death toll from 6 p. m. Friday to midnight Sunday could reach 350, with 13,000 persons suffering disabling injuries.

The record for a two-day July 4 holiday was 271 traffic fatalities, counted in 1953. The highest toll for any two-day holiday weekend was 392 at Christmas of 1954.

At Ft. McHenry, Interior Secretary Fred A. Seaton will raise the new flag at the Marine Band plays "The Star Spangled Banner." The fort was chosen for an official raising because under presidential proclamation the flag is flown there day and night as a perpetual symbol of our patriotism.

The Capitol and Ft. McHenry are two places where it is proper to fly the flag at night.

After the dawn's early light, Americans everywhere may display the new flag. One will be raised at the White House at sunrise.

The new flag will go up half a day earlier in the Far East, due to the time differential. The 49-star banner was to be raised over the U. S. Embassy in Tokyo at 4:20 a. m. Saturday-3:20 p. m. EDT, today since dawn in Japan comes 13 hours ahead of sunrise in Washington.

At the West front of the Capitol, there will be a mass production of the new flag. Hundreds of the new flags are on hand and will be raised and lowered in quick succession. Congressmen are sending them out constituents willing to pay for flags that have flown over the Capitol.

The new flag at Ft. McHenry will fly near the spot where Old Glory's waving "through the smoke of battle" inspired Francis Scott Key to write the Star Spangled Banner.

Archaeologists recently found the buried stump of the flagstaff that stood "through the perilous night" when the fort was bombarded by the British in 1814 and a duplicate of the old pole has been built.

Stubblefield Marks Up His Ninth Straight

The Prep League saw action last night with the Tigers and the Giants coming out on top.

In the first game the Tigers downed the Braves 7 to 6 in a tight game with the Tigers marking up 8 hits and the Braves 7.

For the winners Roberts got three for four, Lee two for three with a double and a single.

For the Braves Parker got a single and a double, Miller a double and Wells a double.

Taylor was the losing pitcher and Ray Roberts the winner.

In the nightcap the Giants won over the Pirates 11 to 7 with Stubblefield marking up his ninth straight win. The loser was Jackson.

Ferguson got two doubles and Pride connected for a triple to account for three of the six hits for the losers.

The Giants got five hits which were scattered.

No Paper Published For Fourth Of July

The Ledger and Times will not publish tomorrow, Saturday, July 4, so that members of the staff of the daily paper can spend the holiday with their families.

Practically all retail establishments in the city will also be closed for the holiday.

All city and county offices and the postoffice will be closed with police and firemen on duty as usual.

During his seventh week of training, he will march 13 miles with full field pack to a hygienic area to spend a week living in the field and learning to integrate the skills he has been taught.

After completing basic training, he normally will receive a two-week leave before reporting for his next assignment.

Electronic Equipment Is Burned; Most Owned By IBM

By DARRELL GARWOOD

United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Electronic equipment valued at more than 30 million dollars was pronounced a total loss today as workmen sloged through the wreckage left by Thursday's spectacular Pentagon fire.

Structural damage, costing additional millions and the possible loss of some irreplaceable secret documents, were expected to be added to the fire's toll.

The electronics equipment was owned by International Business Machines Corp. (IBM) which leased it to the Air Force at $3,500,000 a year.

The Air Force said IBM assumed the entire loss on the equipment. A spokesman said he understood the machines were at least partly covered by insurance.

The five-alarm blaze that swept through a super-secret basement hideaway in the world's largest office building was believed to have been started by an electrical spark, perhaps a short-circuit.

It buckled concrete floors, burst water pipes, and destroyed the tightly-guarded electronic equipment.

Bob Billington With Company A In Fort Jackson Unit

PORT JACSON, S. C. July 3 — Pvt. Robert H. Billington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Billington, 1008 Sharpe Street, Murray, Ky., has been assigned to Company A, 5th Battalion, 5th Training Regiment at Fort Jackson, S. C., for eight weeks of basic combat training.

Upon arrival at Fort Jackson, he was issued clothing and given a complete physical examination and a comprehensive battery of aptitude tests.

As part of his basic training he will be taught rifle marksmanship under the Army's new TRAINFIRE program. In TRAINFIRE, he will learn to use an M-1 rifle by firing at pop-up targets on terrain which duplicates combat areas.

He will also be taught drill, tactics, camouflage, military courtesy, first-aid and other basic subjects. He will learn how to throw a grenade, fire in pitch darkness, crawl under barbed wire, with machine-gun fire overhead, and defend himself in simulated chemical, biological and radiological warfare situations.

During his seventh week of training, he will march 13 miles with full field pack to a hygienic area to spend a week living in the field and learning to integrate the skills he has been taught.

After completing basic training, he normally will receive a two-week leave before reporting for his next assignment.

Overnight Watch Kept

As firemen packed up, military police moved in. They formed a cordon around the damaged area and kept an overnight watch.

Pentagon authorities said the blaze apparently started from an electrical failure, possibly a short-circuit. There was no evidence of sabotage.

All but a small portion of the Pentagon should be back in business as usual by Monday when employees return from the holiday weekend. The 400 employees of the statistical branch were relocated temporarily at quarters in nearby Alexandria, Va.

The Defense Department told United Press International, in response to a question, that all of the records on which the joint chiefs of staff rely are duplicated elsewhere.

Three hundred firemen fought the blaze that smoldered through walls and ceilings for more than three hours before being brought under control. Fifty firemen and guards were overcome by smoke.

As officials studied ways to prevent similar incidents, a crew of 75 to 100 workmen from the general services administration worked their way through the basement "mopping up" the damage.

The electronic equipment written off as worthless consisted mainly of computers and "data processing" machines belonging to the International Business Machines Corp. It had been leased to the secret Air Force statistical service.

Maj. Christian K. Madison, assistant executive director of the statistical service, said IBM officials had examined the charred machines and told the Air Force to "send them to the dump."

Madison added that of 7,000 magnetic tapes containing information for the data processing machines less than 100 were "saved or recoverable."

The tapes, treated with acetate, had contributed an acid odor to the billowing smoke that spread damage through a Pentagon area equal to about four city blocks.

By contrast, punch cards for the computers were packed so tightly in boxes that they were barely signed by the fire. All of these were believed usable.

The breakdown of the water system caused Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy to dismiss the entire Pentagon working force of some 29,000 military and civilian employees, giving them an early start on a three-day Fourth of July weekend.

Some Unaware of Fire

Many working in unaffected sections of the massive five-sided concrete building had been unaware of the fire.

The blaze was confined to a small section 20,000 square feet of the Pentagon's total area, although smoke poured through an area equal to about four city blocks.

Structural damage was estimated at from $200,000 to $5,000,000 depending on who was guessing. This was on top of the $30,000,000 loss of computers, tapes, and equipment in the Air Force's hush-hush statistical center.

FRIDAY — JULY 3, 1959

THE FLAG OF 49 STATES

HOWARD M. LUNDGREN, President of the Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society has written an editorial which appears in the July issue of the Woodmen magazine.

The editorial was called to our attention by Max B. Hurt, executive vice-president of the society and native Calloway County.

We are pleased to run this editorial today. It expresses in a clear and concise manner a feeling and emotion which we feel sure will swell in the breast of many an American tomorrow.

OLD GLORY IN A NEW DRESS

On the eve of our celebration of the beginning of another year of independence — the 184th — a scene will be witnessed tens of thousands of times over as the flag of our country, spangled with 48 stars, descends from flagstaves throughout the land, never again to be hoisted except in historical remembrance.

This grand old flag has been to us a symbol of all we cherish and hold dear in America. Most of us cannot recall the time when any other flag was unfurled as the official banner of our nation's government, for it has been on display for half a century.

Its years of service witnessed the greatest period of renaissance ever experienced in the development of man, and the rise to a position of pre-eminence among free peoples of the sovereign state whereof it is the representation. It has symbolized the armed might of America in two world wars and a dozen lesser aggravated differences between nations. In its time it has left the native shores of two oceans and its way into the world's ether parts; the globe's crannies and outmost reaches; distant places such as the South Pacific atolls and the frozen wastes of the polar regions. Indeed, representations of it are even to be found in the far-flung spaces beyond reach of the earth's gravitation.

It is with a feeling of nostalgia that we witness the departure of the old and the advent of the new, but thus will the progress and welfare of the nation be served.

Hence, in leaving to the history books a glittering page representing a period of proud, God-fearing, peace-loving existence under the old flag, we hail the new; the flag of the 49 states — the 49 United States — of America. We pledge allegiance anew, in anticipation of an even more brilliant record of achievement and human betterment for the future. In the place, to quote Henry Van Dyke, "where the air is full of sunlight and the flag is full of stars."

NEW YORK (UP) — Reflections on "THE" right hand:

Everybody who wants to know about Ingemar Johansson's right hand, the only difference being that since he knocked out Floyd Patterson to win the world heavyweight title they believe all the stories.

The punch, as seen from this corner with an over-Ingemar's shoulder view, was readied much like Robin Hood pulling his bow to full leverage as he got ready to pink one of King John's henchmen.

Ingemar's fist was the head of the arrow and all you can say in the final analysis is that it must be the greatest thing since TNT to have knocked Patterson flat on his back.

It was one of the most fearsome, driving punches these tired, old red-rimmed eyes ever have seen. It retrospect the mere fact that Patterson rose, again and again like a rickshaw popo, is a testimony to his instinctive courage and gameness. Because the man was really lathered.

One of the items which legislated against Johansson in the pre-fight speculation was that he was declared by some to have

Alston Cautions On Flag, But Dodger Fans Hopeful

By MILTON RICHMAN

United Press International

Ultra-cautious Walt Alston simply refuses to talk about a possible pennant but a lot of his Los Angeles Dodgers are starting to think along those lines all because of Irish Danny McDevitt.

The Dodgers have won eight of their last 10 games and now are only a half-game behind the first-place Milwaukee Braves.

No pitcher on the club has made a greater contribution in the current climb than McDevitt, who has won five straight games and a total of eight for the season.

Sent back down to the minors last year because he failed to win, McDevitt has all but wiped out that bad memory this season. He boosted the Dodgers to the threshold of the National League lead Thursday night when he blanked the St. Louis Cardinals, 4-0.

McDevitt gave up 10 hits but was superb in the clutch, giving up only one walk and forcing the Cards to hit into four double plays.

Back-to-back triples by Junior Gilliam and Charlie Neal in the third inning off loser Dick Rickets provided McDevitt with the only run he needed. The Dodgers picked up two insurance runs in the seventh and another in the eighth.

Fan Fights Umpire
The game was enlivened in the seventh inning when a fan jumped out of the stands and battled umpire Bill Jackowski after the latter had ejected St. Louis manager Solly Hemus. Players on both sides rushed into the fray and broke up the fight before much damage was done.

In other NL games, Pittsburgh scored a 10-inning 4-3 triumph over Milwaukee; Chicago swamped San Francisco, 10-4, and Cincinnati won the nightcap of a twin-bill from Philadelphia, 8-4, after the Phils took the opener, 7-6.

Kansas City defeated Cleveland, 6-4, and the White Sox missed a chance to move into a tie for first place in the American League by dropping a 9-7 decision to the Tigers. The Orioles climbed back into the first division by defeating the Yankees, 3-1, and the Senators handed the Red Sox their fifth straight loss, 6-3, in 10 innings.

Dick Groat's 10th inning single with the bases loaded off loser Don McMahon paced the Pirates to their victory over the Braves. Milwaukee made Pittsburgh's job easier by committing four errors, two of which came in the 10th.

Vern Law went the distance for the Pirates, allowing seven hits and winding up with his ninth victory. Woodie Held homered for Cleveland.

Homer Beats Giants
Ernie Banks, Dale Long, and Alvin Dark all hit homers for the Cubs against the Giants, who also remained a half-game behind the Braves. Banks' homer, his 22nd of the season, came with two men on base. Reliever Don Elston held the Giants hitless over the last 3 1/2 innings to preserve Glen Hobbie's ninth victory. Hobbie Eddie Fisher was the loser.

A grand-slam homer by Gene Freese and Dick Farrell's fine relief pitching helped the Phils to their opening game victory over the Reds. Freese connected off loser Jim Brosnan in a five-run third inning and Farrell came in to snuff out a four-run Cincinnati rally in the eighth. Don Cardwell, who struck out 12, was credited with his second victory.

Don Newcombe registered his eighth straight triumph and ninth of the season with a six-hitter in the nightcap. Newcombe also contributed a homer as Ruben Gomez suffered his sixth loss against only one victory.

Four errors, two of them by loser Gary Bell, played a big part in Kansas City's victory over Cleveland. Joe DeMaestri hit a two-run homer to put the A's ahead 3-1 in the fourth. Bill Tuttle then drove in another run with a triple in the fifth and scored himself on Jim Baxter's error. Ray Herbert gained his fifth victory. Woodie Held homered for Cleveland.

Hits Grand Slam
Charley Maxwell's grand-slam homer off reliever Turk Lown in the eighth inning gave the Tigers their margin of victory over the second-place White Sox. Maxwell's 18th homer put Detroit ahead, 9-2, and the Tigers needed that bulge when Al Smith hit a homer with the bases full for the White Sox in the ninth. Neil Chrishley of Detroit also homered with one on. Don Mossi posted his seventh victory and Bob Shaw was charged with his third setback.

Rookie Jerry Walker of the Orioles struck out 10 Yankees and held them to six hits in winning his sixth game. The only run he allowed was Hector Lopez' thirteenth homer in the fifth inning. Bob Nieman hit his ninth homer with one on in the first inning to give Baltimore a lead it never lost. Don Larsen, who had beaten the Orioles 11 straight times since Sept. 5, 1955, suffered his third loss against six wins even though yielding only five hits.

The Senators rolled to their fourth straight victory when Jim Lemon's 19th homer with two on in the 10th inning sunk the Red Sox. Lemon hit his homer off reliever Leo Kiely, the loser. Bob Allison hit his 21st homer for Washington while Jackie Jensen belted his 17th for Boston and Magy Koussh his fifth. Dick Hyde, who was returned to the Senators by the Red Sox two weeks ago in a cancelled trade because of a sore arm.

VITAL STATISTICS STOLEN

PALISADES, N. J. (UPI) — Police suspected today that some young swain has suddenly added 40 choice listings to his "little black book." They reported that 40 completed entry-blanks for the Miss New York State beauty contest—complete with names, addresses, phone numbers and vital statistics—were stolen from an amusement park here.

The beginning of midshipmen in the Navy is traced to the early days when each warship carried a number of young lads who acted as messengers, rushing orders from the officers aft to the men up forward. Generally, a midshipman was regarded as an officer candidate.

Most Women Follow Leader In Fashion

By GAY PAULEY

UPI Women's Editor NEW YORK (UPI) — Most of us women are just a bunch of sheep about fashion, said Vera Maxwell, the designer.

Then she took off for five weeks in Europe before we could beat a defense.

Mrs. Maxwell criticized us for lack of individuality—for our overwhelming desire to conform to what everyone else is doing.

"Now, take Marilyn Monroe," she said. "There's a girl who isn't scared to be herself."

"But I'm scared," she added, in an interview, "that there always will be the big percentage of sheep. The few who lead, the others who feel bound to follow."

The blonde, brown-eyed designer said the way the sack or chemise swept a hand right out of fashion again is a perfect example of what she means. Most women, no matter what the figure type—pudgy, skinny, squat or stringbean—crawled into it.

Turn to Opposites But when it dawned that the chemise and some of us weren't meant for each other we turned to the opposite extreme. In came the shirt-waist with fitted bodice, waistline had full skirt.

"So now we've gone hog-wild for shirtwaists," she said. "And it's not becoming to everyone either. A woman with a wide waist and full bust looks...well, just more so. The bodice is all right for her, but she needs a slim skirt."

"I personally like the coat dress," said the designer, who was wearing a collarless one in beige raw silk with three strands of pearls at the neck. Her coat dress had the unbelted, easy-lines of the better-made sacks.

"The coat dress is very becoming to a full figure," she said.

"Some of the shapes you see today. Honestly! I wonder why women don't try to hide them."

"You don't have to be sylphlike to dress smartly," she continued. In fashion, Vera Maxwell does not preach disregard of trends. She just wishes we women would retain our individuality within the broad framework of good style.

Cites Queen Mary "Look at the late Queen Mary," she said. "Now there was a woman whose type of dress definitely was part of her character, towering toques and all. Yet I'm sure she raised a lowered skirt lengths as trends changed."

The designer flew to Europe for one of her regular trips of scouting for new fabrics and new ideas.

"A designer doesn't get inspiration from fashionable women," she said. "I may get an idea from a native woman. From Tangiers, I came back with a whole flock of colors. Those people start with such brilliant colors...but the sun fades them into those beautiful, muted tones."

Mrs. Maxwell, once upon a time a model, has had her own firm since 1947. She is best known for her ivy leas and jessies, her coat dresses, cardigan coats, wrapped blouses, and ensembles.

"Taste is not measured in terms of money," she said. "I would advise all women to check the appearance of any outfit in a full-length, three-way mirror."

"And be dead honest in your appraisal. This is the hardest thing."

Fashionable Footsteps

By SUSAN BARDEN

Here are some colorful shoes in the very latest styles that will see you through the rest of the summer with the greatest of ease.

Bronze Leather For walking, there is a pair in speckled bronze leather with a two-eyelid oxford tie that is held by a golden thong which ensures a comfortable fit during a stroll. A heart outlined in gold piping decorates the vamp. The tapered oval toe and inch-and-a-half heel are other details.

Contrasting Colors Blue and white kid in an interesting Greek design is used for pumps with a high stiletto heel and fashionably pointed toes. Porous leather soles let air in to circulate around the feet in hot weather and help retain the neat edges.

Glove-soft suede in an exciting pink shade is the leather chosen for a dramatic pair of slippers for afternoon and evening.

Foot Flattery They feature tapered oval toes, high, slender heels and gold kid asymmetrical strap closings for extra foot flattery and stay-on security while dancing.

SOMETHING NEW a-foot are these tortoise shell strollers in smart speckled bronze.

AN OVERALL MOTIF of applique white kid on a blue ground is used for this pump.

GERANIUM PINK is the color of these suede cocktail shoes that go so nicely with pastel after-five frocks.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED The adventure that set a young American artist in Paris, stark Traversa, to the most challenging and strange woman he had ever met began when his friend, Philippe Langie, was murdered.

Philippe, a French diplomat working to effect peace in Algeria, was assassinated while endeavoring to meet Timgad, an actor of Algerian rebellion. Philippe's dying words were "Find Timgad. He's the only chance you have. Don't reflect now that, with her death, you have lost the one trace that led to Timgad. You have to start again from scratch. You have to find another lead. You will avenge her. But now concentrate on your game. And the ball, lying on the third green about five feet from the flag, became a challenge.

"I shall sink it with one putt, he promised himself, and crouched down to take another look at the difficult angle, when, from nowhere, a small black dachshund burst on the green and was gone, Mark's ball in its mouth.

All his pent-up shock and frustration turned to fury and he ran after the dog, swinging his club and shouting for it to drop the ball. But the little dachshund only ran faster, with quite incredible speed for so small an animal.

Finally it ran into a clump of trees below the fairway. There it got the ball and yapped triumphantly. The moment, though, that Mark bent to retrieve the ball, the dog growled and would have bitten him, had not a voice uttered a sharp command. Mark straightened up abruptly.

"Do you really think it is wise to let yourself be tricked from open view into possible ambush?" the same voice said in a slightly ironic tone.

A pair of bow-legged, hairy legs came into view. The man from the lobby of the Monte Carlo Beach Hotel, whose face Mark had not been able to see and had taken for an English tourist.

"Ferrer? What in the world are you doing here?" The inspector shifted his short pipe from one corner of his mouth to the other. He was a short, stocky-built man, with a head shaped like a walnut and just as brown. He had round, velvety brown eyes which could look astonishingly naive.

"I got your message that you had gone to Monte Carlo to meet Corinne Javal just ten minutes after you had boarded the plane. I arrived here a couple of hours ago."

Mark had not been mistaken. He had been watching. "Then it was you who trailed me."

"Christie, gets the better of me at times," Ferrer was still speaking ironically. "I'm glad to hear you noticed it. I had almost convinced myself that you hadn't."

CHAPTER 7 "WHAT a terrible death," a woman next to Mark was saying, touching her throat and shivering slightly. "And she was so young. And lovely. Last night I watched her dancing. To think that only last night... You can't be careful enough, can you?"

Inside his pockets Mark's hands formed fists. If he had not contacted Corinne Javal in his search for Timgad, she would be alive now.

"Was she driving up or down?" "Up. Apparently her car spun several times before it crashed into the mountain."

If she had been on her way up, she could have been killed to prevent her from seeing him. If she had been on her way down, it could mean that she had discovered it was unsafe to meet him at the appointed spot, that she was being followed or had seen somebody else waiting for her. In either case he was certain that she had not been alone in the car.

Mark looked around the assembly of people. None of them seemed to be watching him. Yet it was possible that the murderer was among them. He hoped grimly that nothing in his face betrayed the shock of seeing Corinne dead.

I must behave as if I had never met her before, he told himself. I shall go to the clubhouse. I shall play golf as if what has happened to Corinne does not concern me.

But it was not easy, not easy at all, to behave as if nothing had happened, to walk up to the first tee, make a few practice swings, place his ball and drive, with the picture of Corinne slumped over the door of her car before his

Read What Judge J. Ernest Jones, Mayfield Police Judge, Has to Say About The LISTENER!

"After conversing with my son, Clay, a few days ago he exclaimed 'Dad, that was the most pleasant conversation I have had with you in years. I am so glad that you purchased a LISTENER.'"

"Since my beginning to wear a LISTENER I distinctly hear voices that were almost lost to memory. I find it a great contribution to my happiness and the happiness of my family."

"Previous to my wearing a LISTENER, while viewing television, I would, unknowingly, turn the volume so high that my family would vacate the room, under some pretext. Since I have begun to wear a LISTENER we can now, happily, view the programs together."

"When my wife speaks to me from another room I no longer have to arise, from my favorite chair and rush to her side and respectfully ask: 'Mable, what did you say?'"

"I just don't know why I waited so long. My advice to everyone who has trouble with their hearing is: get a LISTENER. It is like a miracle of direct frontal hearing!"

Events Of Club's Ladies Day Luncheon, Golf

Ladies Day at the Calloway County Country club was Wednesday, July 1 beginning with foursome golf at 9 a.m.

Luncheon was served in the club house at the noon hour. Theme was "The Fourth of July". Centering the buffet table was a large drum decorated with fireworks, two small banners representing the newest states—Hawaii and Alaska—and two miniature dolls in costumes of these two states. Red and white spring flowers completed the drum's decor. Red and blue streamers were placed across the middle of the two serving tables which were overlaid with white cloths.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mesdames Bob Gass, Ed Griffin, William Nash, Howard Olla, Wells Overbey and George Hart.

Mrs. Robert Hahs, golf chairman, announced winners for the morning. They were Mrs. Merrell Pearce, low in first flight; Mrs. Alice Purdom, low in second flight; Mrs. Billie Cochran, poker hand; and Mrs. Ella Mae Quortman, low putts and two balls chipped in.

Mrs. Millie Nell announced that all ladies wishing to attend the luncheon, which are held every other week, should sign the book at the pro shop this week for the entire year.

Mrs. Hahs told the ladies that Miss Sandra Slusmeyer would give a group golf lesson at 1 p.m. each ladies day.

Affixing the luncheon Wednesday were Mesdames Dorothy Crouse, Billie Cochran, Melba Ward, Frances Miller, Marie Wallace, Emma Sue Hutson, Martha Nash, Lillian Olla, Mary Sue Simpson, Lochie Hart, Mildred Gass, Kathryn Kyle, Al Koertner, Delana Waldrop, Inez Johnson, Joanne Pace, Charlotte Stubbelfield.

Backstairs At The Whitehouse

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Backstairs at the White House? When President Eisenhower was in Canada last week to meet Queen Elizabeth II, members of his party heard what was told as an absolutely true story which demonstrates the still great differences between Americans and their British cousins.

It seems that loyal Canadians have been writing their local radio stations, asking disk jockeys not to play one of the current hit tunes in the United States these days, "The Battle of New Orleans."

The callers say the record should be silenced while the QUEEN is in Canada. The British last at New Orleans and the theory seems to be that Her Majesty shouldn't be reminded of this nasty affair.

The British Crown and the American Presidency are two different worlds. Standing on the deck of the Royal Yacht Britannia together, the President and the Queen were cheered lustily by workers along the St. Lawrence Seaway.

"Hi Ike," roared the workers. The President responded with a broad grin and waved both arms in the air.

There were "Three Cheers for Her Majesty" and cries of "God Bless Her Majesty," but the Queen didn't show a flicker of recognition or emotion. So schooled in the dignity of a monarch, she seemed totally unaware of the people cheering her only a few feet from the deck of her yacht.

Maybe it was the hot weather, or the sudden nature of the trip, but when the President went to New York this week to visit the Soviet Exhibit of Science and Culture, the New York police believed he was the people traveling with Eisenhower were arch criminals.

The President entered an elevator in the New York Coliseum, but several of New York's "fix-bugs" grabbed him indiscriminately in the waiting crowd and began forcing anyone within grasp away from the area.

Among those pushed aside and told to stay back were the President's son, Maj. John S. Eisenhower; Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, the President's physician, and Secretary of Commerce Lewis L. Strauss.

The New York police have long had a difficult attitude toward Washington reporters traveling with a president. The Washington men wear distinctive white lapel tags which carry the legend, "Fix of the President."

At the Coliseum, one big police captain shouted to his men, "grab any of those guys with white tags and throw 'em out!"

A secret "service agent" who tried to intercede was shoved up against a wall.

And a New York police sergeant ripped a night stick into the palm of his hand and growled, "I'd like to hit one of 'em just once — hit him real good just once."

Another police officer, a captain who should know better, had some reporters from the White House plus several members of the Eisenhower staff held from the presidential party while allowing a well-known New Yorker to sail by untouched or undisturbed.

"Asked why this particular man was allowed to pass freely, this red-faced captain explained, 'he's a regular guy — you see him at all the fights!'"

Little wonder that the Russian reporters with Deputy Premier Kozlov seemed more interested in the antics of the New York police than in some of the activities of the President.

It was not until 1876 that the Navy adopted the English Morse telegraphic code.

POPPING UP FOR THE FOURTH—A bang-up celebration shapes up for Independence Day from two sources, who are dynamite themselves. Fashion model Gayle Sheldon (left) substitutes balloons for fireworks in New York, where the real thing, as in many places, is outlawed. Pat McLaughlin keeps safe and sane as she waves a fake firecracker in Silver Springs, Fla.
